Park your car just after the village of Le Prese at the Ca' di Calvi 960 m. On a wide mule track, via Cere'se and Giada, you climb narrow bends through a forest of Scots pines. At 1140 m there is a small chapel. You then reach the mountain huts of Li Suvili 1,390 m and, via a flat mule track, the mountain huts of Bedogne and then Motin 1,645 m, from where you can admire the wonderful panorama. There are beautiful views of the mouth of the Valle di Rezzalo, the Serottini chain and the mountain huts of Profa. In this area the mountain huts are very popular throughout the year on account of their sunny location.

Ca' di Calvi In the summer of 1866, Italian troops camped near the Ca' di Calvi under the command of Col. Guicciardini, as the Austrians had occupied the Bormio region up to Ponte del Diavolo. In midJuly they managed to push them back over the Stelvio.
